Indigenous Land Acknowledgment

I would like to acknowledge that I am here today on Haudenosaunee territory. I also acknowledge the many territories and lands across Turtle Island, that you may be joining us from.

We are honored to be here as guests on this land that Indigenous peoples have cared for and continue to care for.

We invite you to take a moment to think about where you presently live and honor the people of the land. Think about your relation to the place you live, work, and interact. This is our inquiry to honor the past and present and to stay connected to decolonization practices.

We invite you to take a moment to reflect on the territory or land from where you are connecting from, as part of this acknowledgement.
